

Our handle on specialty chemicals is why customers can also handle them.

Specialty chemicals require proper handling, specific attention and dependable housing. That's where we come into the mix.

Altium's industrial and agricultural packaging is designed to deliver the ideal combination of package integrity and usability, making our containers ideal for storage and dispensing. We know people are more selective when it comes to handling specialty chemicals, which is why we carefully engineer containers with considerations for transportation, storage and use in mind.

Right for your product. Right for the job.

Every bottle Altium creates is designed to be safe and durable for storage and dispensing. So even if the job isn't well done, at minimum, you know the bottle is.

Popular options include:
